

Ingrid Adams graduated from Western Oregon University with an emphasis in Health. She served as the senior research assistant for the study published in this volume.

Frauke Binder is the Assistant Director of the AHA Vienna Center which provides study abroad opportunities for U.S. students. She also teaches the Intercultural Communication Class in which students prepared the critical incident reports analyzed in the study published in this volume.

Cathryn Dhanatya is Interim Administrative Director & Research Coordinator at Center for International Development and Education's Academic Integration and Senegal Health Education Projects, at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Dan P. Dewey (PhD, Carnegie Mellon University) is an Assistant Professor of Foreign Language Education at the University of Pittsburgh. His research focuses largely on two areas: advanced second language proficiency development (in particular through intensive immersion abroad and at home) and the use of technology in the language classroom.

Matthew L. Goode is a Program Director at the University of Minnesota International Programs Office. . He is a recent graduate of the Comparative and International Development Education master's program at the University of Minnesota. He earned a Graduate Certificate in Australian Studies from Sydney University and has studied abroad in Australia, Laos, and Thailand

Linda H.L. Furuto is Research Coordinator, for the University of California, Los Angeles Center for International Development and Education's Education Abroad Programs

Barbara Gügold has been the director of IES Berlin since 1992. She is a member of the Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin faculty where she teaches the methodology of foreign language teaching.

Heather Gutel is Study Abroad Advisor in the Office of International Programs at Creighton University. She received a Master's of International Education from the School for International Training.

George Heitmann is Professor Emeritus of Management Science at Penn State (University Park). From 1989 to 1994, he served as Director of International Programs at the Smeal College of Business Administration. He chaired the University Committee on Education Abroad, and for many years was the Smeal College representative to the University International Council. He is currently Professor of Economics at Muhlenberg College. From 1994 to 2004, he served as Director and, subsequently, as Dean of International Programs.

Kevin Kehl is the director of the Center for International and Intercultural Education at Abilene Christian University. Dr. Kehl graduated from Baylor University in December 2005 with an Ed. D. in higher education administration. Dr. Kehl has traveled extensively overseas and lived in Kenya, East Africa from 1987–1995.

Omid Kheiltas is Administrative Director and Research Coordinator, for the University of California, Los Angeles's Middle East and Teacher Exchange Projects.

Katharine Krebs is Director of International Education at Binghamton University. With a background in Spanish language and literature, and Latin American studies, she has extensive study abroad program management experience in Spain, Latin America, the Middle East and Europe.

Andrew Law is Director of Off-Campus Study at Denison University. He received his B.A. in American Studies from Georgetown University and his Ph.D. in American Studies from the University of Minnesota. His academic interests include the intellectual politics of U.S. cultural identity, traditional-oriented cultural criticism, and Marxian culture theory.

Sigi Leonhard is Associate Professor of German at Carleton College, where she also teaches in Cross-Cultural Studies and Media Studies. She has been teaching German literature and language at Carleton College since 1982. Her areas of special interest include the Age of Goethe, Contemporary German Women Writers, German Film, and Cross-Cultural Studies. She has published articles on these subjects, as well as poetry in several anthologies.

Sue Mennicke is Director of Intercultural Learning at Southwestern University. She began her position at Southwestern in 1995 and prior to that worked at the University of Minnesota. Sue received her undergraduate (Humanities/German) and graduate (Comparative and International Development Education) degrees from the University of Minnesota, and studied for one year at the Free University in Berlin.

Jason Morris is an Assistant Professor of Education and Coordinator of the Masters Program of Higher Education at Abilene Christian University. Dr. Morris received his Ed. D. in higher education administration from Texas Tech University in 2002. In August of 2003, Dr. Morris received a Fulbright Fellowship to teach, research, and advise students in Budapest, Hungary.

Anthony Ogden studied at the School for International Training (SIT) where he earned his master's degree in International and Intercultural Management (MIIM). Anthony served as the Director for the Tokyo Center of the Institute for the International Education of Students (IES) where he also taught courses in ethnography and intercultural communication. He is an intercultural training consultant for Cartus and was associate director for the Education Abroad (EA) office at The Pennsylvania State University. Anthony is currently working toward a doctorate in Educational Theory and Policy.

Cathy Santanello, is Assistant Professor of Pharmaceutical Sciences and the Director of Instructional Strategies, at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville (SIUE). Prior to joining the School of Pharmacy in 2005, she served as the Program Director of the Excellence in Learning and Teaching Initiative in the Office of the Provost and an Instructor in the Department of Biological Sciences there. She has maintained her interest in wildlife preservation by leading study abroad trips to Costa Rica Her research interests in the scholarship of teaching and learning include case method teaching and learning, assessing student learning outcomes, and active learning in large classes.

Jack Rayman is Director of Career Services and Affiliate Professor of Counseling Psychology and Education at Penn State University. He received a B.S in Industrial Administration and English from Iowa State University in 1967 and a Ph.D. in Higher Education and Counseling Psychology from the University of Iowa in 1974. He served on the faculty of Rajang Teachers College as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Sarawak, Malaysia from 1967 to 1970 He is the author of more than 40 journal articles and book chapters, and two books. He is a Fellow of the American Psychological Association and a Fellow in the National Association of Colleges and Employers.

Val Rust is Director of the Education Abroad Program, at the University of California, Los Angeles and professor of Social Sciences and Comparative Education. His teaching interests relate cultural and intercultural values to the operation of schools. Research interests involve intercultural educational activities; international educational research concentrating on contemporary European education. Special interests are with the politics of school reform, institutional renewal, and education in rapidly changing environments.

Victor Savicki is Professor of Psychology, Emeritus at Western Oregon University. He the editor of a book entitled “Intercultural Growth and Learning in International Education: Theory, Research, and Application,” which will be released by Stylus Publishing in early 2008. He is the author of 11 publications and 14 presentations related to stress and coping in international settings, as well as intercultural adjustment. He is currently involved in several projects focused on assessing the outcomes of study abroad experiences for US university students.

Adrian Shubert holds degrees from the University of Toronto (BA), the University of New Mexico (MA), the University of Warwick (MA), and the University of London (PhD). He has been at York since 1985, and is a Full Professor in the Department of History. Professor Shubert’s teaching and research interests focus on European social history, in particular the history of Spain. He is the recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship (1997–1998), and in 1999 was named a Commander of the Order of Civil Merit by King Juan Carlos of Spain

Stevan Trooboff currently serves as President and CEO of the Council on International Educational Exchange (CIEE), Inc. and its subsidiaries. His experience prior to joining CIEE was in the travel and management consulting industries where he was the owner, founder, and president of a number of organizations started between 1970–1980, and sold during the 1980’s. Dr. Trooboff holds a Master and Doctorate in Business Administration from Harvard University, where he was a Baker Scholar, an award given only to the top 5% of the graduating class. In addition, he has authored several books and numerous educational materials.

Michael J. Vande Berg is Vice President for Academic Affairs and Chief Academic Officer at CIEE. He has worked as an international educator for more than twenty years, holding teaching and administrative positions in Spain, France and the U.S. In addition to numerous articles focusing on international education and on literary movements and figures, he has published English-language translations of Spanish literature. He earned his Ph.D. in Comparative Literature from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, and is a founding member of the Forum on Education Abroad.

April Wilde graduated from Western Oregon University in 2005. She served as a research assistant for the study published in this volume.

Laura Wolff has been an instructor in the Department of Economics and Finance at Southern Illinois University Edwardsville for 16 years, where she has led study abroad courses in Mexico, Costa Rica, and China. Her passion is grass roots economic development, partnering students and other volunteers with civil society and governmental organizations which has led her to develop service projects in multiple international settings. She has degrees in economics and journalism from the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Denise Y. Young is Executive Director of Institutional Effectiveness and Associate Professor of Education at North Georgia College and State University, where she is responsible for university-wide assessment, planning, and institutional research. She was Assistant Provost and Director of Institutional Research at the University of Dallas, 2001–2005. Her Ph.D. is from the University of North Texas in Higher Education and Educational Research.

