

Contributors

Dé Bryant is a community psychologist and assistant professor of psychology at Indiana University South Bend, where she also serves as director of the Social Action Project. She has published "Building a Power Organization: A Network Team Approach to Community Organizing" in Sisterhood, Feminism, and Power.

Hans de Wit is director of foreign relations at the University of Amsterdam. In 1994 he served as the president of the European Association for International Education (EAIE). He was a visiting lecturer in the Department of Sociology at Boston College during the spring of 1995. His publications include International Education in Europe: A Professional View on the Memorandum on Higher Education in the European Community, 1992 (EAIE paper).

Demerise R. Dubois received her master's degree from the Harvard Graduate School of Education, with a concentration in higher education administration and international education. Currently, she works at the School for Field Studies in Beverly, Massachusetts.

Terence P. Hannigan is coordinator of International Student Services at Rockland Community College, State University of New York. He is a Ph.D. candidate in counseling psychology at Teacher's College of Columbia University.

Elizabeth Shannon is director of international visitors and scholars at Boston University. She is the author of two books: Up in the Park: The Diary of the Wife of the American Ambassador to Ireland, and I Am of Ireland: Women of the North Speak Out, the theatrical adaptation of which was staged in Boston in September, 1995.

Susan B. Twombly is associate professor and chairperson of the Department of Educational Policy and Leadership at the University of Kansas. She spent a year as a visiting scholar at the Institute for Improvement of Costa Rican Education at the University of Costa Rica in 1992 and received a Fulbright Fellowship to lecture on higher education in Ecuador during the summer of 1995.

Gary M. Rhodes received his Ph.D. and M.S.Ed. from the University of Southern California and has worked as program coordinator in the Office of Overseas Studies at U.S.C. for seven years. He has written articles and presented papers on the Administration of Study Abroad Programming, Legal Issues and Study Abroad, Insurance Coverage for Study Abroad, and Cross-Cultural and Reentry Programming for Study Abroad.